

Align Technology Announces Favorable Ruling in Patent Infringement Suit With Ormco Corporation, a Division of Sybron Dental

SANTA CLARA, Calif., May 17 /PRNewswire-FirstCall/ -- Align Technology, Inc. (Nasdaq: ALGN), the inventor of Invisalign®, a proprietary method of straightening teeth without wires and brackets, announced today the favorable outcome of the patent litigation suit filed by Ormco Corporation, a division of Sybron Dental Specialties, Inc. (NYSE: SYD).

The United States District Court for the Central District, Southern Division, granted Align's motion for summary judgment of non-infringement in the patent infringement case brought against Align by Ormco Corporation in January 2003. Accordingly, Align has been found not to infringe Ormco's Patent Nos. 5,447,432, 5,683,243, 6,244,861 and 6,616,444. Align is represented by intellectual property specialty firm, Townsend and Townsend and Crew LLP.

"We are very pleased with the Court's ruling which vindicates our position that we do not infringe any of Ormco's patents. We will continue to vigorously assert our rights and defend our intellectual property," said Thomas M. Prescott, President and CEO of Align Technology, Inc. "With this favorable ruling, we can continue to focus on providing the best quality product to our customers and returning excellent shareholder value."

About Align Technology, Inc.

Align Technology designs, manufactures and markets Invisalign, a proprietary method for treating malocclusion, or the misalignment of teeth. Invisalign corrects malocclusion using a series of clear, nearly invisible, removable appliances that gently move teeth to a desired final position. Because it does not rely on the use of metal or ceramic brackets and wires, Invisalign significantly reduces the aesthetic and other limitations associated with braces. Invisalign is appropriate for treating adults and older teens. Align Technology was founded in March 1997 and received FDA clearance to market Invisalign in 1998.
